

Article on Graduate Polish

The economy of today has made it even more difficult for an already existing problem of unemployment. Graduates are left roaming about with curriculum vitae and no employment.

It is not that the jobs are not there but constant failure at job interviews or lost of a newly employed job due to lack of competency is usually the order of the day.

Universities, colleges etc. have done their bid by producing graduates but to succeed in life, graduates need to go that extra length of adding value to themselves

The economy/society is more or less a service driven one which has given room to competition. One must possess the required skills that will make one the most preferred over another.

Graduate Polish now comes in to save the day. Just like the word "Polish", graduates need to add to themselves what was not taught in school e.g. Communication Skills is taught but how to make it effective which is the practical aspect of it is not taught in school, and so many others.

This is where Graduate Polish carefully brings that required exposure, experience, poise and total grooming to give an edge or call it most preferred over others.
